Dear Parishioners,

1. At Peace with Persecution

In the Second Reading, Paul says that he is content with weaknesses, insults, hardships, and persecutions. Why would any rational person be content with these things? All of them look like the very thing to avoid if you possibly can.

Well, what would anyone be content with? How about beatitude? That would be worthy of contentment, wouldn't it?

But in the Sermon on the Mount, Christ connects beatitude to persecution: Blessed are those who are persecuted for righteousness's sake (cf. Mt 5:9). Actually, in the very next verse, Christ connects beatitude to being insulted, too.

And now it is easy to see why anyone would be content with persecutions and insults, and so with hardships, too. Beatitude goes together with them.

Christianity turns the ordinary standards of the world up-side down, then. When we follow Christ and suffer persecution, insults, and hardships with him, we are not among the world's losers. We are the prize-winners. Beatitude is ours!

But that still leaves weakness. Paul says his own weakness comes from Satan. And, of course, one kind of weakness that comes from Satan is sin. Could anyone—should anyone—be content with his own sin?

Of course, a person shouldn't accept his sins! Out with them! Out with them NOW!

Merely expressing the thought this way explains Paul's point, doesn't it?

Hardship, insult, persecution, and most especially the wretched sin that besets us are not our final state. Beauty and love, in life with the Lord, are our final state. They are our home. But we do not get home by ourselves. Only God has the wisdom and the power to get us there. And so we have to wait for him, even for the removal of those sins that we would so dearly love to be rid of, and would also so dearly love to keep.

And that is why Paul can be content even with weakness, and why we can be patient even with our own sins. God's grace is sufficient for each one of us, not just where insults and hardships are concerned, but even when it comes to our sins. If only we do not let go of our waiting for him with trust, with peace and contentment in him, he will rid us of our sins in his own time. He will get us home.

Grounding the Sacred through Literature and the Arts

A conference and post-graduate seminar
Australian Catholic University
25A Barker Road, Strathfield NSW
Thursday 23 – Sunday 26 July 2015

Registration is now open for this conference, which explores the interplay between the arts and the sacred. Featuring speakers from around the world, the conference is of general, as well as academic, interest. Virtuoso recorder artist Genevieve Lacey will interweave her playing with reflections on the nature of the sacred in music. Vivien Johnson will speak to an exhibition of Indigenous art. David Malouf will be in conversation with the noted British scholar David Jasper. Sister Kathleen Deignan, recent president of the Thomas Merton Society, will speak (and respond to questions) from New York via Skype. Imam Afroz Ali will speak on Islam and the expression of the sacred and Michael McGirr will celebrate the poetry of Jesuit poet Peter Steele. Other program highlights are on the conference website, <http://www.acu.edu.au/groundingthesacred>

This conference will be remembered for years to come as an event that generated powerful insights into the ways in which the arts can help us access the sacred. Registration by 8 July is encouraged, via the website. Inquiries to Elaine.lindsay@acu.edu.au or michael.griffith@acu.edu.au

POPE'S COLUMN

Pope to New Archbishops: Church That Doesn't Give Witness Is Like Dead Person Who Thinks He's Alive

Celebrating Mass for Feast of Sts Peter and Paul, Francis Gives Bishops 3 Rules to Live By

"Teach prayer by praying, announce the faith by believing; offer witness by living!"

Pope Francis gave this three-pronged advice during yesterday's celebration of the Feast of Saints Peter and Paul at St. Peter's Basilica.

Thousands of faithful were gathered along with the traditional presence of a delegation from the Ecumenical Patriarchate of Constantinople. The Pope began by saying he would like to pay homage to the courage of the Apostles and that of the first Christian community, which, he added, carried forward the work of evangelization, free of fear of death and martyrdom, within the social context of a pagan empire. For us Christians of today, he underscored, their Christian lives give three powerful calls: to prayer, faith and witness. "The Church wants you to be men of prayer, masters of prayer; that you may teach the people entrusted to your care that liberation from all forms of imprisonment is uniquely God's work and the fruit of prayer; that God sends his angel at the opportune time in order to save us from the many forms of slavery and countless chains of worldliness." In prayer, the Holy Father observed, believers express their faith and their trust, and God reveals his closeness, also by giving us the angels, his messengers.

"For those most in need, may you also be angels and messengers of charity!" he urged.

"Let us think about how many times the Lord has heard our prayer and sent us an angel? An angel who unexpectedly comes to pull us out of a difficult situation? Who comes to snatch us from the hands of death and from the evil one; who points out the wrong path; who rekindles in us the flame of hope; who gives us tender comfort; who consoles our broken hearts; who awakens us from our slumber to the world; or who simply tells us, 'You are not alone.'"

Despite all the angels God places on our path, we still allow ourselves to be overwhelmed by fear, unbelief or even euphoria, Francis said, noting, "we leave them outside the door."

"No Christian community can go forward without being supported by persistent prayer!" Prayer is the encounter with God, the Pope said, stressing God never lets us down, is faithful to His word, and does not abandon his children.

Unafraid: Turning to the second call, the Pope said, "the Church desires you to be men of faith, masters of faith, who can teach the faithful to not be frightened of the many Herods who inflict on them persecution with every kind of cross. No Herod is able to banish the light of hope, of faith, or of charity in the one who believes in Christ!" God does not take his children out of the world or away from evil, Pope Francis explained, but does grant them strength to prevail. "How many forces in the course of history have tried, and still do, to destroy the Church, from without as well as within, but they themselves are destroyed and the Church remains alive and fruitful!" Francis noted. "Everything passes, only God remains. Indeed, kingdoms, peoples, cultures, nations, ideologies, powers have passed, but the Church, founded on Christ, notwithstanding the many storms and our many sins, remains ever faithful to the deposit of faith shown in service; for the Church does not belong to Popes, bishops, priests, nor the lay faithful; the Church in every moment belongs solely to Christ. "

Following the examples of Peter and Paul, the 78-year-old Pontiff said, living holy lives promotes and defends the Church. In the name of Christ, the Pope went on to say, believers have raised the dead, healed the sick, loved their persecutors, and "shown there is no power capable of defeating the one who has the power of faith!"

God's friends: On the third call to witness, the Pope began noting how Peter and Paul, along with the Apostles--in their 'earthly lives'--became God's friends and with their martyrdom sowed the seeds of the Church.

Reflecting on how their lives gave witness, Francis stressed, "A Church or a Christian who does not give witness is sterile; like a dead person who thinks they are alive; like a dried up tree that produces no fruit; an empty well that offers no water! The Church has overcome evil thanks to the courageous, concrete and humble witness of her children. She has conquered evil thanks to proclaiming with conviction: 'You are the Christ, the Son of the living God' (cf. Mt 16:13-18)."

The Pontiff exhorted the new archbishops to be men of witness, reminding them what Saint Francis used to tell his brothers: 'Preach the Gospel always, and if necessary, use words!' 'There is no witness without a coherent lifestyle!' the Pope said. "This is not so straightforward: because the most effective and authentic witness is one that does not contradict, by behaviour and lifestyle, what is preached with the word and taught to others!"

Addressing the archbishops who would be receiving the Pallium-- 'a liturgical sign of communion that unites the See of Peter and his Successor to the Metropolitans, and through them to the other Bishops of the world. Pope Francis entrusted them with this call to prayer, to faith and to witness.
